

MASSIVE WHIPLASH AND SEQUESTERED DISC RECOVERY from a Military Tank accident - after 38 years

"I have been retired from the Army now for nearly 10 years having had a full soldiers career, much of it on military tanks (Chieftains and Challengers). During my career I had a fairly major tank accident and damaged my head, jaw and teeth, neck and back through a massive whiplash and collision with iron and steel.

We were travelling at about 20 mph by night over rugged terrain and we hit an unseen old bomb crater - about 10 feet deep and 20 feet wide, my head took the impact against the steel of the turret! After some time in hospital, and as a fit young man, I seemed to recover pretty well with bouts of back and neck pain, and continued with my duties and playing a lot of sport till the age of 50, when things started to get painful. I struggled with back pain and bouts of real awkwardness through spasm's, often getting very "twisted" when standing. I had many sessions with a physio or accupuncture each year. I could usually recover and get back to something "normal".

Gradually over the last 10 years things became more difficult - less sleep due to back and neck pain, less activity because of stiffness, less mobility because of discomfort - and I realised that at the young age of 60 something needed to be done.

I arranged a consultation with my neuro surgeon and was scanned to see if there was a problem. There was - the radiologist reported "a sequestered prolapse disc at L4/L5 level, >>> level, compressing the L5 nerve root - the options were to do nothing or have invasive and risky surgery.

At the same time Peter Ottens of Spine Spa Anti Aging Technologies arrived nearby and had been working with the highest level of military for spine compression injuries.

After some careful discussion of my problem(s) we started on treatment. I was amazed. Within a few sessions I was sleeping much better, my neck pain had gone, and I was feeling a little less stiff and more mobile. Peter found the source of the problem, not just the damage from my tank accident 38 years ago but also a fundamental problem caused by a rugby accident 50 years ago which had affected my SI (sacro iliac) joint, and had, for the whole of my life, never been discovered and left me compensating for a fundamental weakness.

Youth and soldierly activity had hidden the problem - age had found it out and with Peter's help has got things back into much better balance.

I continued treatment with Peter for 4 months - initially intensive and then more gentle just to keep things ticking along. Treatment is very different - it is called DMT (Decompression Mobilization Therapy) - a treatment never offered / given to me before.

The assessment is made in the Postural Response Lab at his clinic where all the structural deficiencies are revealed. Some of my sessions were 2 hours and some only 15 minutes. >>> from a Military Tank accident - after 38 years

MASSIVE WHIPLASH AND SEQUESTERED DISC RECOVERY

Considering some of my injuries had been there for nearly 50 years, occasionally I have spasms, and Peter is able to get to the problem straight away.

I have had no more visits to the physio or accupuncturist to straighten me up.

I feel hugely better generally and am much more mobile - stiffness and pain has gone into the background - and my life looking forward looks much better as I head for some sort of retirement and lots of activity!
